WAR-HARASSED JAPS CANCEL 1940 OLYMPICS

Announcement Surprise to Nipponese Who Already Started Training.

BLAMES HEAVY WAR COST

Threatened Boycott by Other Nations Recalled on Heels of Withdrawal Decree.

BULLETIN

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Mayor Harold H. Burton and chamber of commerce officials said today they were considering making a bid for the 1940 Olympics, forfeited by Japan.

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO—The Japanese government suddenly abandoned plans today to be host to the 1940 Olympics, because of the probable duration of the Chinese war, and the cost of financing the games.

The announcement of the cancellation by Public Welfare Minister Marquis Koichi Kido through Domei (Japanese news agency) surprised the entire nation, including the Japanese organizing committee whose members had declared the 12th Olympiad would be conducted "whether or not the government" supports it.

Urged Boycott.

Various athletic organizations and newspapers in several countries have agitated for a boycott of the games if held in Japan, but monetary reasons and military leaders' opposition to a growth of internationalism among Japanese were cited to explain the suspension.

Despite several previous indications that Japan did not wholly support the 1940 events, the government had prepared to contribute 4,300,000 yen (about $1,250,000) toward the cost and build a $2,000,000 stadium near Tokyo.

Just three days ago a squad of 40 was selected for the Japanese football team and sent to the mountains to begin training.

(London and Helsingfors, Finland, had been mentioned as possible sites for the coming Olympiad if Japan found it impossible to be host.)

The cancellation was taken to indicate Japan is convinced the

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TRAIN —(AP)— President Roosevelt pushed through to the Pacific coast today on a program much to his liking.

Arranging to arrive at Crockett, near San Francisco, this morning, his day's plans included a sightseeing and inspection tour in the San Francisco area, a speech at the exposition grounds administration building, was expected to be one of the most important of his cross-country tour.

The fleet review takes the president back to one of his first loves, the navy. His plans called for him to board the cruiser Houston at Oakland in midafternoon and to stay on her freshly scrubbed decks at least seven hours.

The review was scheduled for 7 p. m. (EST).

Rocketing into New York to a perfect landing at Floyd Bennet field at 1:36 p. m. today, the five fliers shown above established a new record for a round-the-world flight, covering more than 14,000 miles in less than four days. The picture at the top shows the powerful plane in which the flight was made. At the bottom are Howard Hughes, owner of the plane, and the four men who made the flight with him. Hughes' time of 91 hours and 16 minutes bettered by three full days the previous record, held by Wiley Post. New York was ready to give the flying quintet the most exuberant welcome the metropolis has staged since Lindbergh returned from his New York to Paris flight 11 years ago.

Give It The Gun, Boy! You're On Last Lap of a Swell Flight

By HARRY FERGUSON
(UP Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK—He's hopped the hemispheres and is shoving her nose into the sun for home today

He's got a four-day beard on his face and an old brown hat on his head.

He's driving a silver chariot pulled by the power of 2,200 horses.

He's covering an eighteenth of a mile every time your heart beats.

Give her the gun, Howard Hughes!

He's hopped the continents like a kid on a pogo-stick.

He's finishing a cold and crazy Maypole dance around the North Pole.

He's making all the world a suburb of the U. S. A.

He's dirty and hungry and tired and the motors are roaring till his ears are ready to split, but—

Give her the gun, you flying fool.

He's been places but he hasn't seen things. No time for that when you're up there scraping the stars at 10,000 feet and hoping your gas will last. No time to enjoy the scenery when you're knifing a wet fog and busting through thick, white clouds.

Paris was journey's end for that other lanky guy who drove the "Spirit of St. Louis" out along the great circle course 11 years ago, but it was only a signal for Hughes & Co. once they got her wheels off Floyd Bennet field.

It's 7:20 p. m., Sunday, July 10, and Mrs. Harry Conner has just stuck a wad of chewing gum on the tail of the plane for luck. People are shouting at Floyd Bennett field and somebody is

FACES HARLAN MURDER CHARGE

Former Deputy To Be Arraigned Today As Shooting Victim Dies.

HARLAN, Ky. — (INS) — Lee Fleenor, former deputy sheriff, and one of the defendants in the federal court coal conspiracy trial at London, Ky., was to be arraigned today on a murder charge after Harlan county's bloody labor war claimed another victim.

Charles Reno, 40, died in a hospital last night after he was allegedly shot by Fleenor seven days ago. Sheriff Clinton C. Ball announced immediately that Fleenor would be accused of formal charges of murder. Reno was the third man to die of gunshot wounds in labor strife in the Harlan coal fields since the government started its London conspiracy case early in May.

CLOSES TRACK

Sheriff Halts Dog Races at Milton Lake Club.

YOUNGSTOWN—(AP)—The Milton Lake Kennel club dog racing track was closed today under order of Sheriff Ralph E. Elser.

The sheriff, continuing his campaign against betting, went last night to the track, 18 miles west of here, and took it over on an attachment for a $14,000 judgment obtained by Harry McCune, Warren electrical contractor.

Only a few hours before, Judge Henry P. Beckenbach dissolved a month-old temporary injunction which prevented the official from interfering with the "buyers' exchange" auctioning system at the track.

Madison To Resume Issuing Relief On 50 Per Cent Basis

Madison township today resumed issuing relief orders on a 50 per cent basis.

Last June 30, trustees announced that no relief orders would be given out during July, because the township had no funds. Today, City-Township Relief Director Earl A. Nist said the trustees had authorized him to resume distributing relief orders, but to cut them in half the size issued during June.

Nist said the board had taken the action in view of the present industrial conditions and the fact that persons assigned to WPA projects will not receive pay checks until Aug. 1.

The relief orders which will go out to 362 families in the township tomorrow will amount to approximately $950, or one-half of the regular amount issued for two weeks. This is slightly more than $2 a family.

Township officials pointed out however that the 50 per cent cut in the orders tomorrow will result in only a 25 per cent reduction for the entire month as a full order was issued July 1.

W. F. Beam, chairman of the board, said that he did not know how long relief would be distributed on a 50 per cent basis or whether the regular orders would be resumed Aug. 1 as originally planned.

He added that the township already had spent $3,000 more than authorized by law and that the board had hoped to catch up on paying old bills by the reduction. The township receives $1,000 monthly from the state and another $200 from the general fund for relief.

Food orders also will be issued to approximately 1,000 indigent families in Mansfield tomorrow, Nist announced.

Grand Jury Indicts 1 Out of 3 Drivers In Fatal Auto Crashes

One out of three drivers who figured in fatal automobile accidents in the vicinity of Mansfield within the last month was indicted when the county grand jury reported late yesterday after a one-day session.

Two indictments, one charging first degree manslaughter and the other second degree manslaughter were returned against Richard Strohminger, 19, Mansfield, who was arrested following an accident on Lexington avenue, June 11, when Miss Ada Kovachy, Cleveland, was killed.

No action was taken in the cases of the other two drivers.

The jury returned a total of 11 indictments, after hearing 14 cases and examining 34 witnesses. Six of the indictments were secret, but County Prosecutor Gleenn W. Marriott said no serious offense is involved in any of them.

Strohminger was held responsible for the fatal crash in which he is said to have driven his car around a truck and collided headon with the automobile in which Miss Kovachy was riding. He left the scene of the accident, but was returned to the police station by his parents.

Strohminger has been free under $2,000 bond.

The jury heard witnesses in two accident cases involving the deaths of Mrs. Wilbur Wilson, Mansfield, and William Greifenstein, Ontario, over the Fourth of July week-end, but took no action in either case

GLOBE GIRDLERS HANG UP 4-DAY FLIGHT RECORD

Thousands Jam Air Field To Welcome Sportsman, 4 Aids Ending Journey In 91 Hours, 16 Minutes; Police Battle To Keep Crowd Back.

(By Associated Press)

FLOYD BENNETT AIRPORT, NEW YORK—Howard Hughes and his four fellow world girdlers landed at Floyd Bennett airport at 1:36 p. m. (EST) today with a smashing new round-the-world record of less than four days.

The big silver monoplane circled the field twice before coming down to an easy landing before a wildly cheering crowd.

The total elapsed time for the dash around the globe was set unofficially at 91 hours, 16 minutes, or three days, 19 hours and 16 minutes.

The multimillionaire speedster whipped in from the west under a threatening overcast sky with a record that more than halved the 7 day, 18-hour and 49-minute round the world time established in 1933 by the late Wiley Post, a mark then regarded as sensational.

Hughes drove the ship at full speed on the last lap of the flight from Minneapolis to Floyd Bennett airport, whence he took off at 6:30 p. m. (EST) Sunday. A spanking tail wind helped him along.

His speed for the elapsed time was approximately 161 miles per hour.

A fire whistle let go with a screeching blast as the aerial argonauts set their plane down on the concrete runway and taxied toward the administration building.

Hundreds of automobile horns joined in a tumultuous welcoming.

Despite elaborate precautions to protect the plane, a surging crowd drove through to get a close-up glimpse of the unshaven, dishevelled heroes.

Hughes apparently did not notice a path which had been cleared for him and he taxied toward a commercial transport plane, which was moved immediately.

Hughes and his companions' last stop before New York was at Minneapolis, Minn., at 8:38 a. m. (EST) after a 2,441-mile flight from Fairbanks, Alaska, over the Canadian Rockies, down the great wastes of the Yukon and the barrens of Northwest Canada.

After a 33-minute halt at the airport there they roared off at top speed for New York. A strong tail wind shoved the ship along at high speed over this 1,054-mile last lap

Stop 33 Minutes.

The fliers left Minneapolis at 9:11 a. m. after a 33-minute refueling stop.

From there on they were sighted at infrequent intervals, but travelling at breath-taking speed.

At 11.40 a. m., they were reported over Sarnia, Ont., approximately 480 miles from New York.

Wellsville, N. Y., reported sighting the plane at 12:39 p. m. (EST). Wellesville is about 75 miles southeast of Buffalo, and 235 miles from New York

Less than a half hour later, the plane was reported sighted over Scranton, Pa., airport, 135 miles from Floyd Bennett Field.

Then, at 1:34, the plane was sighted over Floyd Bennett Field, and two minutes later it had come in to a perfect landing—an almost unbelievable record written into the history of aviation.

Meanwhile, throughout the day, crowds gathered to welcome the airmen at Floyd Bennett Field. The throng, estimated at 25,000, cheered radio reports of the plane's progress.

Whalen Greets Them.

Grover Whalen, president of the world's fair, 1939, for which the flight was designed as a good will venture, was the first to greet the fliers.

In striking contrast to the tired fliers, he entered the plane immediately after it came to a stop. Following him came Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, himself a flier of World war days.

The impeccably dressed Whalen presented two large baskets of flowers

Hughes took his time about emerging from the plane, stepping partly out once and then returning.

At 1:47 p. m., EST, ten minutes after the ship landed, Hughes stepped down, followed by his four companions.

Those who accompanied him on the flight were Lieut. Harry P. Connor, navigator; Lieut. Thomas L. Thurlow, navigator, Edward Lund, flight engineer, and Richard Stoddart, radio engineer.

The plane had come to rest on exactly the same spot from which it started Sunday afternoon.

Police found it impossible to control the mass of humanity

Ross Kidnap-Killer, Akron Slayer Calmly Go to Chair

SEADLUND FIRST TO DIE UNDER LINDBERGH ACT

'Not Afraid to Die,' He Tells Guards; Ohio Murderer Says Act Was Justified.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—First federal prisoner ever to die under the Lindbergh act, John Henry Seadlund, 27-year-old Minnesota backwoodsman, was executed in the electric chair at the Cook county jail today for the $50,000 kidnap-murder of Charles Ross, wealthy manufacturer.

Since Seadlund had been sentenced in the Federal courts the execution was carried out under the jurisdiction of U. S. Marshall William O'Donnell although it occurred in the county jail.

Seadlund was hustled into the death chamber at 1:03 a. m., and quickly strapped into the chair by deft-fingered guards. The current was shot through his body at 1:07 a. m., and seven minutes later three doctors pronounced him dead.

He died calmly, and without uttering a word in the death chamber. As he was being led into the chamber, however, he refused to allow guards to help support him by placing their arms under his elbows.

"I'm not afraid to die," he said as he shrugged off the proffered help.

Shortly before his death he had eaten heartily of a chicken dinner. He also had received the last sacraments of the Catholic church, and added a Macabre touch to his last hours on earth by conferring with the undertaker who is to bury his body.

'SHOOTING JUSTIFIED'

COLUMBUS—(INS)—With an air of indifference and whispering inarticulately that he believed his crime to be justified, Robert Snow, 27, Akron, went to his death in Ohio penitentiary's electric chair for the murder of Mrs. Harriet Deger, 25, Akron, and thus the number of death row inmates today was whittled to 13.

Snow walked into the death chamber at 8:35 p. m. with hardly a flicker of an eyelash. After he sat in the chair, Willard A. Rogers, Snow's attorney, bent over him.

In response to Rogers' question, Snow whispered:

"I felt justified in shooting the woman. She had it coming." He added, "Tell my mother goodby and not to feel sorry for me."

His mother, Mrs. Lulu Snow, 72, went back to Akron late yesterday after spending most of the day with Snow.

The current was turned on at 8:35 p. m. and at 8:41 Snow was pronounced dead by Dr. George Keil, the prison physician.

Mrs. Deger was shot on Jan. 18 shortly after Snow was freed from the Summit county workhouse where he had been placed after she charged he beat her.

About 30 persons witnessed the execution and one of them fainted.

'Get Around More' To Win, Davey's Advice To Sawyer

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey offered a suggestion today to Charles Sawyer, his opponent for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, that Sawyer "will have to learn to get around more if he expects to be elected governor."

"I met my oponent in Fremont Tuesday night for the first time in this campaign," Davey said as he addressed three Cleveland political rallies last night. "Somehow I don't see him much."

Davey predicted he would carry 85 of 88 counties in Ohio's August primary.

He termed Sawyer "a silk-stocking who was reared in luxury and who thinks the great mass of the people are crazy. . . . I think they are not. I was born among the poor, and I have tasted the bitter dregs of poverty. I have never got the swelled head; I want to be just one of the folks."

Davey called John Bricker, Republican candidate for governor, "a political panty-waist" and referred to James Metzenbaum, Democratic aspirant to the lieutenant governorship, as "that slippery little Metzenbaum."

Attorney George Biddle thinks women carry around a lot of junk in their handbags. Mrs. Mary Campbell, secretary to County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott doesn't thing so. They argued. To settle it, Mrs. Campbell dumped the contents of her bag into Biddle's lap. There were two compacts, handkerchiefs, postcards, letters, driver's license, swimming pool ticket, comb, hairpins, lipstick, and money. Mrs. Campbell insists each item is a necessity. Biddle still insists most of it doesn't belong there. The argument is still on. Kibitzers are wondering how she got all that stuff into such a small space.

It was an interesting contrast of the old and the new when Hugh J. Fokner, Mansfield's "Daniel Boone" went sky riding with Clarence Chamberlin, pioneer airman. Chamberlin, who is more at home in the skyways than he is on the ground, took Fokner for his first ride in the giant Condor which he flew to Mansfield and used for passenger flights here. He saw Fokner on the ground at the airport Monday night, was intrigued by the long, flowing hair and eccentric garb, and offered him a ride. Fokner was hesitant at first but finally decided to go, and from now on he'll be an enthusiast of air travel.

GUARDS PATROL SCENE OF FEUD OVER MINE FIRE 'SHOW' RIGHTS

(By United Press)

NEW STRAITSVILLE—Armed guards today patrolled the area near the 54-year-old New Straitsville mine fire because of a renewal of the feud between two rival concerns in the business of showing the fire to sightseers.

Sheriff James Adrian and a force of deputies came here from New Lexington last night when they received reports of a melee in which fists, baseball bats and shotguns were the chief weapons.

The sheriff estimated that several hundred dollars worth of signs showing visitors the way to the mine fire had been torn down during the battle.

Howard Essex, president of Underground Fires, Inc., and William Hoy, owner of the Subterranean Fires company, were taken before Prosecuting Attorney T. B. Williams at New Lexington. They were released upon their own recognizance.

Essex told authorities he found Hoy and the latter's employes tearing down Essex's signs and that Hoy threatened him with a baseball bat. Bystanders were said to have prevented a fight between the two.

Essex then got his shotgun and stood guard over his property, Sheriff Adrian was told.

The dispute between the rival companies began several weeks ago when one offered to show the mine fire to sightseers at one-fifth the other's fee.

Barriers to isolate the mine fire and eventually choke it off are being built by WPA workers.

ASKS CABLE BIDS

City Acts to Extend Police, Fire Signal System.

The city took steps today to extend the underground police and fire signal system as the board of control called for bids on approximately 3,000 feet of cable to be used in constructing and replacing circuits in the mercantile district.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert announced that bids will be accepted at the office of the board until noon Aug. 1 on the various size cables.

Specifications on the various materials to be delivered to the city call for approximately 1,750 feet of 48 conductor No. 14, solid tinned copper cable; approximately 400 feet of 10 conductor No. 14, rubber insulated cable and 400 feet of 24 conductor No. 14 cable, all to be lead sheathed.

Also 1,600 feet of seven conductor, No. 10, solid copper, nonmetallic underground cable with a working pressure of 600 volts, 60 cycle.

Styert said that all bids must be accompanied by a certified check for $50 on a Mansfield bank.

SETS RATE FOR WHEAT LOANS

Wallace Says U. S. Will Allow 59 to 60 Cents Per Bushel.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary Wallace announced today that the government would make loans on 1938 grown wheat at rates averaging between 59 and 60 cents a bushel to producers who want to hold their grain for better prices.

The loan was made mandatory under provisions of the new farm law on the basis of an official forecast of a huge wheat crop. The crop is estimated far in excess of a normal year's domestic consumption and export needs of about 750,000,000 bushels.

WALL OF WATER TRAPS BATHERS AND FISHERMAN

Many Injured, Boats Damaged by Rush of Tide; Two Girls Caught in Undertow.

(By United Press)

HOLLAND, Mich. — At least five persons were known dead today after a series of huge waves swept suddenly into and over Holland beaches from Lake Michigan.

Scores were believed injured as swimmers and fishermen on piers and breakwaters, terrified at what was described as walls of water 10 feet high rushing landward, were caught unprepared and knocked into the water late yesterday.

Undertow Blamed.

Lifeguards believed those drowned were unable to escape the powerful undertow.

The dead:

Ruth Riksen, 18, Holland, a maid employed in the summer home of Mrs. M. W. Borders, Kansas City, Mo.

John D. Lent, jr., 20, Peru, Ill.

Catherine Schutt, 16, Beaver Dam, Mich.

Herbert Brower, 40, Grand Rapids, Mich., an employe of the Bell Telephone company.

Oscar Thorsen, 49, Muskegon, Mich., drowned at the City park beach.

The two girls were drowned when caught by the undertow while swimming on the beach two miles west of Holland. Witnesses said the girls were at the four-foot depth when the waves hit them, and that they disappeared in the undertow.

Lent drowned when his canoe overturned near Pentwater, Mich., while Brower was pulled under while swimming at a point near Holland.

Boats in the Holland harbor and in other havens along the coast were battered and smashed against piers.

The coast guard, reporting a number of rescues both by coast-guardsmen and fishermen on the piers, believed the waves were caused by storms along the Wisconsin shore Tuesday night.

WARNS AGAIN

Hopkins Forbids Participation by WPA in Politics.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins today renewed warnings to supervisory and administrative WPA workers against engaging in political activities.

Hopkins wrote WPA heads in all states, calling attention to regulations applying to field, district and local administrative staffs and supervisory personnel, but not applying to other project workers.

Hopkins reminded the workers that the new relief appropriation act bars such employes from seeking elective office in any primary, general or special election and from serving as campaign managers or assistants for other candidates.

GEN. JOHNSON:

Maybe We've Come To Place Where Depression Will Just Die of Old Age

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—Far be it from me to be making predictions of prosperity or, even by implication, running a tipster service on markets. There is not enough wisdom to do that—here are anywhere. If accurate predictions were possible there wouldn't be any tipster services because all the tipsters would be multi-millionaires and advising others would be beneath their dignity.

But there isn't a doubt that all the important business indexes are turning upward. What was spotty a month ago, is becoming more uniform and things seem, at least, to be in better balance for an upswing than they have in a long time.

Several skeptical commentators are talking about "false dawn" and comparing this advance with the remarkably sudden upward surge in 1933 that began in March and ascended further in a shorter time than any in our history—only to strike the ceiling in August and come bouncing back.

That, so runs the argument, was due to business trying to "beat the gun" and get out a lot of production before the NRA codes, by increasing worker's pay, would raise all costs." The idea of these Job's comforters is that the new wages and hours bill is like NRA and that the present spurt is another "false dawn" due to a new effort to "beat the gun," on a new increase in wages and costs.

For opinion based on ignorance this hits a high. In the first place, NRA was the least of many influences that caused the spurt of 1933. In a condition of absolute defeat, demoralization and despair, with all the banks and most of the factories closed, employment at a standstill and worse threatened, enterprise in this country was completely comatose.

Mr. Roosevelt's activities in his first few weeks had the effect of galvanizing a corpse. The mental attitude of this country changed more quickly and completely than anybody thought possible, from an absolute low of despair to almost unlimited hope. The budget was to be balanced. Agriculture was to be rescued. The unemployed were going back to work. The banking collapse was salvaged. Unlimited credits were created. Confidence returned in a tidal wave.

As for fear of increased costs, AAA promised through processing taxes and artificial shortage to increase costs far more than NRA. The later experiment of devaluing the dollar was expected by many almost to double them. Sure, there was a rush to "beat the gun" but NRA wasn't the principal gun. The real cause was that on all fronts was expected a vast inflationary boom and the whole country rushed to "buy 'em low and sell 'em high."

There is no parallel whatever in the condition now — no record blackness of despair to start from, no threatened inflation of farm prices, no new dollar devaluation, and as for any vast increased costs due to the thin and puny little wages and hours bill, that is an acme of absurdity.

In the ten basic industries, it will have no effect at all. They already pay wages well above its ultimate minima. It applies only to small sweat-shops, industries or sweated areas where costs have very little effect on the general price structure. This recovery doesn't look like any new "false dawn" to me. Maybe it is, but if it so turns out, it won't be because of any rush to "beat the gun" of the wages and hours bill. That isn't a gun. It isn't even a toy cap-pistol.

Without any prophecy, we are entitled to wonder whether the depression hasn't simply lived too long, isn't about to die a natural death through age, and if this country isn't just too rich and resilient to be kept down by any force of blundering economic of political tinkering.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

Robbin Coons, our Hollywood columnist, is in New York for two weeks to see what movie activities are like in the east.

NEW YORK—This, folks, is my day of atonement and embarrassment. Here I've come to New York to check up on a lot of things. My two weeks have slid by like a greased pig. And what's this on my desk, leering at me, but a pile of scrambled notes marked: Unfinished Business?

F'rinstance:

Write a piece on Jack Holt, and let the world know that Jack—more than 20 years a movie star, and no longer so hot in Hollywood—is the biggest star on Broadway. Tell Jack, if he doesn't know it, that his name goes up in monstrous twinklers every time he sends a picture to the old main stem. Tell the Holt fans everywhere how their clamor kept Columbia from "dropping" him when that studio tried to "wash him up." . . .

See this pretty Martha Scott of "Our Town," the girl that has all the movie talent scouts dithering . . . Find out why she can't make up her mind—or if she has. . . .

Find out why the movies haven't gobbled up Patricia Morison, the striking dark beauty of "The Two Bouquets" . . . And write a yarn about Marcy Westcott, the loveliest blonde (after Zerina) the other side of footlights now . . . Tell how Marcy, signed by Metro for movies, got this stage break as her first film assignment, when Producer Marc Connelly couldn't find the right girl and the movies saved his day with the loan of Marcy . . . Dish out some praise for Connelly for daring to present a quaint, old-fashioned musical—without a line of fifth or double-meaning—to New York audiences . . . They're suposed to have lost taste for lavender and old lace, sachets, and the scent of mignonette, but Connelly reminded 'em. . . .

Write a fan letter to Josephine Dillon Gable for Julie Haydon's New York triumph in "Shadow and Substance" — because Julie's dramatic coach stuck by her in Hollywood when too many producers didn't realize what a star they might have had . . . ("Will you, really?" said Julie. "And give her my dearest love?")

Look into the strange case of Arthur L. Mayer, Harvard graduate and movie exhibitor, whose motto is "Everything is hunkygory at the Rialto" . . . Mayer plays murder, blood-and-thunder, wild west and he-man flickers exclusively—and to heck with the women's trade . . . And makes it pay . . . And then, on the Harvard and culture side, he brings over "artistic" foreign films on which he stands to lose his hunkygory profits . . . Strange, strange case. . . .

Do up Paramount's Max Fleisher (Betty Boop's papa), only man with courage—or is it nerve?—enough to follow Disney with a full-length cartoon feature . . . "Our 'Gulliver's Travels' will be a most unusual picture," Max said . . . Meaning he realized, I hope, it would have to be after "Snow White." . . .

Interview John Hoysradt, the ex-history teacher now wowing the Rainbow Room with his monologic mimicry . . . Talk to other Rockettes beside blonde Bonnie Bradley of Youngstown, O., and see if they're all as Bonnie is—which is meant, Bonnie, for a compliment. . . .

Well, there are other notes, but you can see how it is. It's this way in Hollywood too but I'd thought New York would be different. I'd thought to GET THINGS DONE.

And now I've got to make a train to keep a date with some fresh country air—somewhere between the movie capitals of east and west. Some talented writing and acting folk of Hollywood are going to take over while I practice breathing—and I'm as grateful to them as even you will be.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Variety of White Accessories Accent Summer-time Wardrobes

White hats, gloves and accents are playing a leading role this summer season of 1938 in the accessory field. One of the newest things in gloves is the washable pique six, eight and ten-button lengths designed especially for wear with short-sleeved dresses. The model is wearing a flattering off-the-face hat and gloves in the six-button length with a blue and white printed crepe frock. Pastel trimmings, which have been so popular during the past few seasons, have given way to white bandings and pipings on the mid-season dark dresses which are so essential to smartness and coolness.

SMILES AND SUNBEAMS ARE TWINS
Constipation Pains Are Parents of Frowns.
World's Tonic Helps Change Frowns to Smiles By Relieving Constipation Gloom.
A healthy person radiates sunshine and cheer and expresses them in smiles. But worry about the evils of constipation such as nervousness, headaches, pains and aches and tired, worn out feeling often expresses itself in frowns. It's good advice to say: "Stop frowning and smile once in a while." It's good advice also to say: "Try WORLD'S TONIC." Now let's hear about Mrs. Mary Bauer, 995 Allendall, Akron, O.,
"WORLD'S TONIC by relieving my constipation so nicely has aided in calming and quieting my nerves so that I am now able to enjoy some sound restful sleep for a change; all its exacting toll in painful back and limb aches and dizzy bilious sensations with gas, acids, sourness and stomach cramps are better now too. I'm certainly grateful for this excellent medicine and am telling all my friends about it.
"It's odd how people often go off at a tangent and doctor or see specialists for all sorts of sickness and disease without first making sure that the source of many ailments, namely constitpation, is properly cared for. It's almost like condemning the stove, the coffee or the pot for not boiling without making sure the stove is lit. If more people would start at the source, as I finally did, and give attention to their common cause of many uncomfortable ills, they might find that many of their complaints were the results of this ruinous condition and may not be forced to the expensive extremes of specialists to overcome developments that might be serious and even deadly if allowed to run their destructive courses.
Skillful blending of roots and herbs with valuable alkalines enables WORLD'S TONIC to help prevent premature aging which poisons accumulating from occasional constipation may bring on.

Man May Not Wed Her, So Why Wait?

By VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS LEE: I am a good, honest, hard-working young lady of 28 years." That is the way the letter signed "HOPEFUL" starts. You can guess some of the rest of it. Three years ago she met a man—"a most charming one," and they fell in love. This is her description of him:

"First of all, he comes from a good family. . . . He is honest, essentially stubborn, strong-willed, fair in his dealings, and has strength enough to tell the truth. He is not a coward. In fact, there is everything in him to admire. Everyone likes him. He is clean and sweet, both body and mind."

But this paragon of manhood, after seeming to love her as much as she did him, veered off, and went off with other girls. Hopeful didn't say anything or make any claim upon him. He admits he had a love affair before he met Hopeful, but while she has been out with many men, he is the only one she has ever really loved, she declares.

He tells her that she is wonderful and will make some other man a good wife. He never made any gifts until recently, when, after an absence, he brought her a small gift; and he also gave her a little present at Christmas. She now only sees him once every three, four or five weeks.

"What do you think, Miss Lee? I wonder how many years does it take a very conservative man to make up his mind? I do hope it won't be longer than five years. He is nearly 33."

I would say offhand, after reading your letter, Hopeful, that you are optimistic, indeed, if you think this man is so in love with you that he eventually will marry you. If he really were in love he would certainly see you oftener than once every three, four or five weeks.

Some Endings Happy.

And yet it just happens that I have known of cases in which two people had occasional dates for years and eventually married. I remember a bride who had passed her first youth but was marrying a man her own age, with whom she had gone off and on for many years. On her wedding day she said that she had gone with many other men, and had tried to marry them; and that the bridegroom had taken out many other girls—but that somehow they always came together again.

Another very popular youth flitted here and there, dating all the attractive girls in his set, but one red-headed young woman was always the one he came back to. He eventually married her and so far as I know they lived happily ever after.

It may be that this will be the case with you, but I think you are taking chances. As you love the man so much and have continued to care all these years, maybe you would rather continue to wait and hope than to go with others. Do whatever makes you happiest, but I think you are a little bit optimistic about your chances of this man's marrying you.

What has been the experience of some of my readers? And are you not laying yourself open to a great shock in being absolutely true to him? Why not go out with other men? May he not marry someone else after your years of faithfulness? How will you feel then? Willing to take a chance?

Look Cool Even On Warm Days

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

ONE OF THE best ways of being flower-fresh all summer long is to look cool. Hot days can be really calm and happy if you are sure that neither you nor your clothes have that sopping appearance.

Naturally everyone perspires a lot more in warm weather than at other times, and its the healthy thing to do. This is the body's way of regulating its temperature through evaporation, keeping your skin moist, and removing waste material. So don't be surprised. But by all means be prepared!

Don't just give up and go around looking like a used piece of blotting paper. Nowadays immaculacy, or in ordinary language, that out-of-the-bandbox look, is a fundamental of true charm. And this applies to the gentlemen just as much as it does to the ladies. So you'll have to spend a little time on checking perspiration, otherwise your clothes will look soggy and you'll lack that clean, fresh delicacy that is absolutely necessary.

Protect Clothing.

Fabrics are more often damaged by perspiration than is commonly known, according to the reports of the Association of Dyers and Cleaners. This "tendering" is very often not apparent until after a garment has passed through a cleaning and pressing process. So checking perspiration actually prolongs the life of your fabrics. And in these modern times there is no excuse to ruin your fine new clothes or to offend your friends by lack of fastidiousness.

There are several excellent anti-perspirants on the market, in cream, powder and liquid forms, that have been recommended by doctors as harmless to you, and commended by cleaners as clothes protectors.

Checking perspiration locally is quite harmless if you use a reliable product. It acts like an astringent and gently closes the pores so that the secretion is routed to other parts of the body where it is less noticeable and objectionable, and where it can be more readily evaporated. The total perspiration of your body is not in any way reduced, so these great helps toward daintiness have no effect on your health.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I made short work of putting the small boys to bed, and, indeed, they "needed no rocking," as their grandmother puts it. All my thoughts were centered on Dicky's tortured face as he went down the stairs, and I was wild to go down and give him what comfort I could.

There was a conjecture in my mind that I might be able to bring him effectual assuagement, for I guessed what was troubling him most at this juncture. When the children were asleep, I hurried downstairs and found him pacing the veranda instead of walking outside.

He was waiting for me. As soon as he heard my entrance into the living room, he came in and, striding up to me, gripped my shoulders.

"As per usual, I'm leaving you to hold the bag, old Dear," he said hoarsely, "but I can't help it. I'm so jittery now, I'm nearly out of my mind, and I couldn't face their reproachful eyes, their disappointed faces, their struggles to keep back tears at the news I was going to run away from them. But I'm a beast to put it all on your shoulders."

There were tiny beads of perspiration on his upper lip, and his eyes were tortured as they had been when he went downstairs after bidding his mother and the small boys good night.

Shoulders Adjusted.

"Don't worry about my shoulders," I told him lightly, for I knew that was the mood I must use. "I've already adjusted them, and you don't need to worry about the youngsters any longer. I have a most scrumptious, also a splenderiferous plan. They may mourn your going for 30 seconds after they find out you've departed, but not longer. Now don't register pique, or I won't tell you anything about it."

The haunted look left his eyes and was replaced by lively questioning.

"Tell me this instant what you've been up to," he demanded, and quickly I outlined my summons of Jerry Tiger with his crow-bait horses, and the trip to the woods or beach with him on the morrow which I had planned. He did not wait for me to finish before catching me in his arms with a terrific "bear hug" that made me fear for my ribs.

"You are probably the best scout in all the country," he declared extravagantly. "And as for diplomacy, if they'd give you a free hand, you'd have all world affairs settled between cups of tea without half trying."

Good News to Him.

"That's the best of all possible news," he said, "and you've made it possible for me to go away with one less worry on my mind. By the way, are the boys ready?"

"I am sure they are, or can be in five minutes," I said. "Bill has had plenty of time to finish packing, and Hank ought to be sufficiently soothed by his sedative by this time."

"I think I'll let him be soothed a few minutes longer," my husband declared. "Come out and sit with me a while on the veranda. It's a perfectly gorgeous night, and who knows how many such nights we'll have this autumn? It's growing late in the season, you know."

This was not at all what he had started to say. I was sure of that, and I felt as if cold fingers were clutching my heart as I conjectured only too clearly the words he had left unuttered.

What He Implied?

"Who knows how many such nights we'll have together?"

That was what he had meant to say, and the implied fear behind those words made me shiver involuntarily with terror.

"What's the matter? Cold?" my husband asked with quick solicitude.

"A little." I prevaricated, for until he gave me his confidence, I could not tell him that I comprehended the secret terror that was consuming him.

He stripped off his coat and laid it around my shoulders.

"Keep still," he commanded as I began to protest. "I'll bring you a wrap. But it really is warmer outside than it is in here. But it isn't cold anywhere. Sure you're not ill?"

"Positive," I returned gaily, realizing that I must control and camouflage my mental turmoil, and when he had brought the wrap, we sat close together in the couch hammock, and spent a comparatively silent but blissful half hour in the fragrant darkness, scented by the last roses of the year in the garden outside.

Katie's running footsteps and excited voice behind us snatched us back from romance to reality.

"Oh Meesis Graham," she exclaimed breathlessly. "Big cop he outside keetchen door, say he got to see you right away."

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, July 15.

ACCORDING TO important mutual aspects between the dominating planets, this may be a day in which social, educational charitable or public activities may take precedence over purely business or commonplace interests. There is an expansive and ambitious accent in the direction of pleasure and indulgence, rather than in private enterprise. Unless there be excessive or reckless expression of these there is a prospect of increased prestige and popularity.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves engulfed in a year in which the activities are exerted in the direction of public work, political, social, charitable, or else in the pursuit of private progress, rather than strictly business or workaday affairs. Wise indulgence, with proper restraints as to overzeal or ambition in such channels, promises enhanced popularity and prestige.

A child born on this day may have an endowment fitting it for life in public service rather than in private gain. It should have a fine mind and kindly and sympathete nature, with a desire to help its fellows. This should assure it personal prestige and popularity, which it should wear with modesty.

Use two spoons for turning a roast. A fork pierces the surfaces and allows the juices to escape.

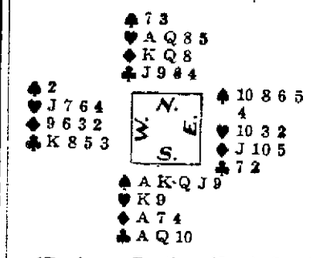
"The Authority on Authorities"

THE TRUMP COUP IDEA

It is a good thing for every player to know the principle of the grand coup and its simpler brother, the trump coup. These are based mainly on the idea that, if you have no trump left in the dummy to lead for a finesse against an honor held by the opponent who had the suit bunched against you, the same purpose can be accomplished by having some other suit led through him late in the hand, when he has nothing left but trumps. You therefore get the last crack at him with your own trumps. This principle of play may be employed in various ways to protect you against unfortunate trump breaks.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

North and South reached a contract of 6-Spades on this deal in a rubber game.

When the heart 4 was led, South won with the K and cashed the spades A and K. South was disappointed on the second round to find that East held as many trumps as himself and in addition he had to count on a possible club loser.

He managed to make the contact by switching then to the heart 9, which he won with the Q. On the heart A he discarded a diamond. The diamonds A and K were then cashed and on the diamond Q he tossed a club. Instead of finessing the club then, he went right up with the A and played a club, not caring who won it. No matter what West then played, South, with a Q-J-9 holding in trumps, was able to capture East's 10-8-6, so that South made the contract.

Hines, Nelson Clash in Feature Match in Quarter-Finals at Shawnee.

SHAWNEE ON - DELAWARE, Pa.—(AP)—There was interest at all points today as eight survivors from a starting field of 108 of the nation's crack professionals entered the quarter-final round competition in the P. G. A. championship over the Shawnee Country club course.

There was interest in the top match of the draw because it sent Jimmy Hines, confident conqueror of two-year Champion Denny Shute, against Byron Nelson, the transplanted Texan who had a 15-under-par score for 96 holes at the start of this morning's first 18 holes.

There was interest at bracket No. 2 for that sent straight slugging Sam Snead against Jim Foulis, sad-faced son of the inventor of the mashie-niblick and only surprise survivor into the round of eight.

There was interest at bracket No. 4 since that matched Squire Gene Sarazen, possibly playing in one of his last national championships, with Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., who always "should have" but never has won a national title.

But there was more interest than usual at bracket No. 3 where tall, Horton Smith went up against small, compact, Paul Runyan, besides Sarazen the only former titleholder left in the field.

Ohio Survivors Reach Semi-Finals.

AKRON — (INS) — Headlined by the battle between youthful Miss Janet Shock, Denison university co-ed, and Mrs. Linton Fallis, expert shotmaker from Toledo, the semi-finals of the Ohio women's golf tournament got under way at Portage Country club today.

The other match, between a couple of former champions, promised to be as tightly fought, although not preceded by the sensational golf showed by Miss Shock and Mrs. Fallis. It was between Miss Mary K. Browne, Cleveland, former national tennis champion, and Mrs. Burt Weil, of Cincinnati, three times Ohio golf queen.

Miss Shock yesterday went 23 holes to defeat Miss Eva Shorb, low-shooting Wooster college star.

Mrs. Fallis was three under par in 11 holes as she defeated Mrs. C. R. Harbaugh, of Cleveland, 8 and 7. Her 36, equal to men's par, on the first nine, has been surpassed but once by a woman playing the Portage course. Miss Jayce Wethered, of England, once toured the out nine in 35.

Mrs. A. E. Allen of Mansfield, was defeated by Mrs. William Hobart, Cleveland, 1 up, in a consolation match in the Ohio Women's tournament yesterday. Other Mansfield women scheduled for play yesterday defaulted.

Bob Enos Wins Singles Title

Bob Enos won the Woodland tennis club singles championship this week when he defeated Lowell Bourns, defending champion. Enos held the championship three years ago.

The new championship lost only one set in the titular match, winning 7-5, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

Softball Elimination Set for Aug. 31, July 7.

The district softball tournament will be held at League park, July 31 and Aug. 7, Donald D. Cram of the Y. M. C. A., district commissioner, announced today.

This will mark the second time in three years that the tournament has been staged in the city. The elimination last year was held in Galion. The East Side Night club of Mansfield won the tournament last year.

Cram said that all teams must be registered with the Ohio softball association before they are eligible. Registration may be made at the Y.

Entries for the tournament must be filed with Cram at the Y not later than July 23.

Veteran Ohio Trainer Returns to Mansfield With Classy Race Stable Including Callie G

AMONG the first arrivals with entries for the three-day county fair harness racing program here a week after next is Gabe Cartnal, a 30-year veteran of the game.

The Hanover, O., trainer who has tutered scores of horses into outstanding places in the horse world, is not a newcomer to Mansfield racing enthusiasts. He was in the cart when Mansfield was recognized as a Short Ship meeting center.

Cartnal has his own training track on his Licking county farm. It was there that the favorite on many a racing card, Jakie O'Conner, 2:04½, was reared from a colt. In 12 years of racing, the horse finished in the money all except once.

Prue Gratton 2:03, winner of the $25,000 Kalamazoo derby; Dorothy, trotting filly with a world record for two-year olds of 2:09; and Pattchon Boy 2:02 a favorite at earlier race meetings here, are among the racers Cartnal has trained.

Racing this year in Mansfield will be the present outstanding horses from the Hanover farm.

GABE CARTNAL . . . Behind Trotter Dr. McElwn, 2:07½.

Callie G., 2:06¾, a world champion as a two-year-old last year, will be entered in the three-year-old pace. Single Girl, a full sister to Callie G., will be entered in the two-year-old pace.

Dr. McElwyn, 2:07½, will be entered in the 2:12 trot; Friendship and Bohemian King will be in the pace for two-year-olds; Cynthia 2:07¾ will enter the 2:21 trot; Philmar, 2:09 will race in the 2:21 trot and Stella McKinney, a colt, will compete in the 2:24 pace.

Three No-Hit Games Entered In Records

Hahn, Slaybaugh and Phillips Enter Hall of Fame In Abbreviated Tilts at Fairground.

NO-HIT games held the spotlight in the abbreviated city recreation baseball leagues at the Fairground yesterday.

Three no-hit performances were registered in four five-inning games played in the Intermediate and Junior circuits.

Winning places in baseball's hall of game yesterday were Hahn of the Cubs, Slaybaugh of the Tigers and Phillips of the Athletics.

Remain in Tie.

The no-hitters hurled by Slaybaugh and Phillips kept the Tigers and Athletics in a tie for first place in the Intermediate league.

Slaybaugh struck out two and issued three walks as he hurled the Tygers to a 15 to 1 victory over the Browns. One of the features of the game was Osburn's home run with the bases loaded.

Thirteen strike outs were registered by Phillips as he set down the White Sox without a hit to hurl the Athletics to a 11 to 0 triumph. He walked two. Sheriff hit for the circuit.

Hahn of the Cubs was the wildest of the no-hit pitchers, issuing six walks. He struck out nine as he pitched the Cubs to a 9 to 0 victory over the Bees. The victory gave the Cubs undisputed possession of second place in the Junior league. Schafer limited the winners to four hits.

Beat Cards, 13-6.

In the other Junior league tilt, the Giants won over the Cards, 13 to 6. Robertson, the winning pitcher, yielding three hits. The hurler also hit for the circuit.

Vitt on Pan as Tribesmen Tumble Out of League Lead

Indians' Manager Blamed for Failure of Feller to Win Consistently on Mound.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Baseball experts today directed a volley of sharp criticism upon the head of Oscar Vitt as his Cleveland Indians tumbled out of the American league lead.

The criticisms of Vitt came after youthful Bob Feller blew a 3 to 1 lead in the ninth inning here yesterday and permitted the Washington Senators to beat the Tribe 4 to 3.

Through the training season and the early part of the championship campaign Vitt handled Feller in an admirable way baseball experts said, and the young fireballer responded by turning in a record of nine victories as against two defeats by late June.

Overworks Feller.

Hard put for starting pitchers by this time, Vitt made the bold announcement that Feller would work three times within an eight-day period against the Chicago White Sox and the Detroit Tigers. Feller went through with his manager's plan, but failed dismally to make a success of it and he has remained in a slump ever since.

The Iowa farmboy has not won a game since he beat the Red Sox 7 to 3 on June 28 for one of his best showings of the campaign. Since then he has appeared armweary and wild.

For eight innings yesterday Feller was the master of all situations. Over that stretch he had given up only six hits and issued but three bases on balls.

Then came the fateful ninth. Feller started it by walking Buddy Myer. Jimmy Wasdell was retired, but Ossie Bluege followed with a double. Rick Ferrell fanned for the second out. Pinch-hitter Taft Wright doubled. George Case walked on four pitched balls and then Buddy Lewis singled to drive home the winning run.

Harry Kelley, the veteran curve ball artist, was in the box for Washington and richly deserved the triumph. He gave the Indians only four hits.

Cleveland scored its first run in the fourth inning when Roy Weatherly beat out an infield hit, stole second and came home as Sammy Hale singled.

The Tribe did not score again until the ninth when Hale walked, Jeff Heath doubled and Earl Averill was walked intentionally. Hale scored and Heath took third as Trosky flied out. Ken Keltner followed with a single to plate the second counter of the round.

Injured by Drive.

Johnny Humphries, rookie relief hurler of the Indians, was struck on the right elbow by a drive from the bat of Julius Solters during batting practice. Humphries was rushed to a hospital where X-ray pictures disclosed there were no broken bones.

In the closing game of the series today Mel Harder and "Dutch" Leonard were to be the opposing pitchers.

Chevies Play Home Sunday

Mohicans Engage Mt. Vernon at Fairground.

The Mohican Chevrolets, who won the city sandlot championship last year, will make their first appearance of the season at the Fairground Sunday when they engage Mt. Vernon at 2:30 p. m.

The Chevrolets will be permitted to use the field Sunday because the American Legion club will be playing at New Philadelphia.

It is doubtful whether Bob Marton, manager of the club, who is nursing an infected foot, will be with the club Sunday. He suffered the injury while appearing back of the plate for his team in a recent game.

Another casualty is Bob Straub, outfielder, who suffered a sprained ankle a couple of weeks ago.

Head Friday League Card

Two of the more important games in the Y. M. C. A. Club softball league will be staged at North park and Empire field Friday.

In the North park game, the Catholic Foresters engage the Hermit club, and the Schoolmasters tackle the Knights of Columbus at Empire field.

The J. A. C. and Wesco clubs tangle at Liberty park and Local 40 and Zents' Radio clubs meet at Prospect park in the other games.

THIS AND THAT. "Skeets" Gallagher is no more. From now on you'll be seeing the name Anthony R. Gallagher, for his real name is more appropriate to his new position, that of assistant to Director Wesley Ruggles . . . The fourth Crosby baby was christened this week. He is Lindsay Crosby, four months old and he had his "picture took" at the same time . . . It turns out that Sigrid Gurie, the Norwegian beauty in "Marco Polo" is a Brooklyn lass . . . Irene Dunne is signed to star in "The Unholy Beebes" . . . A "natural" for Bob Burns is "Arkansas Traveler," which he'll make with Jean Parker, Fay Bainter, Lyle Talbot, John Beal, Irvin S. Cobb and Dickie Moore . . . "Algiers" with Boyer is scheduled for release within a few weeks . . .

"Fast Company."

Melvyn Douglas, who did an impressive role in "Toy Wife" last week will be back in a Mansfield theater the last two days of the week when he appears in "Fast Company" at the Madison. Douglas and Florence Rice portray a married couple who combine matrimony and a business career which deals with solving mysteries and tracking down international thieves. A murder sets them on a mystery in this story and their ability to joke in the face of death provides a climax of suspense. The film is based on Marco Page's mystery novel, which Critic Alexander Woollcott declared the best of the year. Others in the cast are Claire Dodd, Louis Calhern and Nat Pendleton.

Problem Play.

A triumvirate of stars carry the interest in "Woman Against Woman" which opens at the Ohio today. Herbert Marshall, Virginia Bruce and Mary Astor have the major roles in a dramatic triangle of first wife against second wife, with the husband fairly well behind the eight ball. From Margaret Banning's story "Enemy Territory," M-G-M has made this story of a selfish, self-centered wife who doesn't care for her husband but who gives her life to making him and his second wife miserable after she has divorced him. It is a problem play with all the sympathy in the role of the second wife.

From The Past.

A group of Gilbert and Sullivan players and a replica of the old Martin Beck theater in New York City bring to screen audiences a glimpse of what the original operettas were like, in the picture "The Girl Said No," opening at the Majestic tomorrow. Irene Hervey, Paula Stone and Robert Armstrong carry the major roles, while scenes from the Gilbert and Sullivan productions are worked into the story. Among the musical numbers are favorite selections from "The Mikado," "Pinafore" and others. The second feature is a Western, "On The Great White Trail" with Renfrew of the Royal Mounted.

Flood Is Pictured.

"Big Town Girl" at the Ritz on Friday and Saturday, has Claire Trevor, Alan Dinehart, Alan Baxter and Donald Woods. The action revolves around a "big town girl," married to a bank robber, who hides her night club talents in a ten cent store to keep out of her husband's way. A freak trick makes her a radio star over night and as the "Masked Countess" she is pursued by a newspaper reporter who seeks to learn her identity. The action moves along to a small town engulfed by a major flood and disaster. A James Oliver Curwood story, "Roaring Six Guns," with Kermit Maynard, is the supplementary feature.

Shift Sox, Yankee Games to Stadium

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)— Games scheduled between the league-leading Cleveland Indians and their two most formidable rivals, the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees, here Aug. 3-7 have been transferred from League Park to the giant lakefront Stadium, it was announced today. Vice President C. C. Slapnicka said the heavy demands for tickets for the Boston and New York series had resulted in the switch.

ANKLE INJURY FORCES McNEILL TO DEFAULT

NEW YORK—(AP)—With the top seeded favorite, Don McNeill, out of the running, it looked today like a wide open scramble for top honors in the New York State clay court tennis championships.

McNeill took a bad tumble in his third-round match with Jack Bushman. The Kenyon college ace finished out and won the match and later in the day played doubles. But yesterday he found his foot and ankle so uncomfortable that he called on a doctor and learned he had torn some ligaments and wrenched an ankle. McNeill defaulted.

MARKET DROPS BACK IN DULL STOCK SESSION

List Fails to Show Progress Despite Reduction in Opening Losses.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market developed into a bull and irregularly lower session today after yesterday's late reaction.

Prices started down and then showed steadying tendencies. Losses in some cases were cut down but the list as a whole failed to make much progress and declines predominated.

The weakest group was the chemicals, where losses ran to 2 points in air reduction. Allied was down almost as much.

The steels started heavy with losses running to a point in Bethlehem. Losses were regained later and slight gains substituted.

Chrysler snapped back after a lower start and was up nearly a point. Other auto shares were steady.

Utility shares worked irregularly lower, reflecting the municipal power loans announced by PWA Administrator Ickes Price changes were small.

Most rail shares gave ground but came back slightly while the rail equipments showed a weak tone. Losses in farm implements ran to over a point in case threshing.

Copper shares were under some pressure. Phelps Dodge was an exception and up a point.

GIVE HER THE GUN, MR. HUGHES

You're Near the End of Globe Flight That Makes World a Suburb of U. S. A.

trying to make a speech. The tall guy in the brown hat—Hughes—waves once, the motors roar and the big ship—25,000 pounds of her — starts down the runway. She lifts at last.

He's over Cape Breton island, 700 miles out, and stepped her up to 180 miles an hour as the gas load lightens.

He's catching a tail wind off Newfoundland and nosing her out to sea.

He's rolling into the dawn three-quarters of the way across and the millions who have their ears to radios hear he's "too busy to talk."

He's hitting 206 miles an hour and that green patch down below is Ireland.

He's circling for a landing at 11:58 a. m. Monday and it's—goodbye Broadway, hello, France.

Lindbergh did it in 33 hours, 29½ minutes; Hughes & Co., took 16½ hours. Eight hours in Paris to repair a strut and a chance for Thurlow, Connor, Lund and Stoddart to grab some sleep. But not the tall guy in the old brown hat, he's studying weather charts, shaking hands with ambassadors and stuffing cablegrams from all over the world into his coat pocket "Yeah, it was a good flight and thanks a lot for all your help here' and then—

He's lifting her off the ground in the white-hot heat of floodlights.

He's catching the wind on his tail again and those silver stripes down there are the Rhine and the Danube.

He's peering from under the brim of the old brown hat for a landing and people are shouting in Russian at him.

They had to throw out a gift of caviar in Moscow because every ounce counts and the worst was still ahead Same old thing—gas, oil, checks the motors, a wave of the hand and—

He's flying from the land of white-skinned people into the domain of the slant-eyed yellow races.

He's over the land of unpronouncable names — Khabarovsk, Anadyrsk, Kurgan and Krasnoyarsk.

He's landing at Omsk and pleading with the airport mechanics to hurry the check-up

He's 42 hours, 40 minutes and 6,753 miles from New York.

He's listening to herdsmen and peasants whose ancestors rode with Ghengis Kahn

Polar fliers said the most dangerous strip of land is over the top of the world from Yakutsk, Siberia, to Fairbanks, Alaska

So he's off from Yakutsk and Stoddart, the radio engineer, tells the world "all is well" and that he's going to grab an hour's nap

They cross the ice where somewhere the Russian Polar fliers lie dead

They curve around the top of the world and point the ship for Alaska where Will Rogers and Wiley Post died Twelve hours out of Yakutsk they set her down at Fairbanks, and it only takes an hour and 19 minutes to refuel

So today—

He's eating up the last of 11,000 miles around the world

He's heading for a landing on a field where his tire tracks are still warm from the take-off.

He's making monkeys out of Magallan and everybody else that ever went around the globe

He's giving her the gun for home.

3 CITY TEACHERS SEEK THRILLS IN FARAWAY VACATION PLACES

For most of Mansfield's 225 teachers summer vacation means another job to help the family income or going back to college for some needed extra credits.

But for three of the more adventurous, the summer holidays promise a lot of thrills and experiences in faraway places before classes begin again in September.

The greatest distances will be traveled by Miss Dora McLeod, primary supervisor, and Dan B. Haber, instructor in John Sumpson Junior high school.

Miss McLeod realized a life-time desire in going to the Argentine in South America to study the customs of the southern hemisphere, while Haber, who is a student of history and economics, is in Russia for first-hand information about the Stalin government

The cooling breezes and palm trees of the Pacific attracted Miss Ruth Moffet, teacher in the Bushnell school, who will spend the summer vacationing in Hawaii.

Nearly one-third of the city's teachers are attending summer school at Ashland college and Ohio State university, with 68 of them scheduled to continue their study at least until August.

Fewer of the city's teachers are finding it necessary to attend summer school this year, Supt. W. L. Miller said, since most of the instructors have completed their credit requirements.

VANISHING RACE DOESN'T APPLY TO INDIANS NOW

Population Totals 337,366, Increase of 24.7 Per Cent Since 1900.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The North American Indian has taken the warpath against disease and thereby won a population victory which seems to have saved his race from extinction, according to official reports.

Once known as "the vanishing red man," the Indian today is not only recovering in population numbers but actually increasing faster than white men in the United States, according to the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

At the beginning of this year the Indian population of this country was estimated officially at 337,366, or an increase of 24.7 per cent since the turn of the century, when the population was reported at only 270,544.

The number of Indians today is still far below the number believed to have inhabited the region of the United States when Columbus discovered America. They are estimated to have numbered then about 846,000 (1,150,000 for all of North America above Mexico).

Decrease Halted In 1888.

The recovery actually has been under way since 1888 when the Indians numbered 246,544 according to the Indian bureau. In the last few years the increase has been sufficient to confront the government with a serious problem of providing sufficient land for those types which prefer prairie and forest expanses for their habitat.

"With the help of the sympathetic and understanding government, the American Indian, is overcoming the ravages of the white man's diseases and the white man's guns, is contrary to the general belief, actually increasing in number, in hardihood and in the capacity for earning a livelihood in the white man's world," the bureau said.

"Increased medical attention has done much to cut down the death rate of Indians and at the same time a gradual improvement of the economic level of some groups of Indians has assisted them in making the needed adjustments to the drastic change in their way of life made necessary by the overwhelming invasion of alien white population.

"Because of varying definitions of an Indian and because of statistical carelessness in earlier days, no absolute conclusion can be drawn from the earlier reports and census," the bureau said. "What we do know is that since 1928 there has been a rather steady decline in the Indian death rate for the country as a whole, and a decline in the Indian birth rate; but the birth rate is consistently higher than the white birth rate, and the indicated rate of increase of Indians is higher than the white—probably higher than that of any other major population group of the country."

In 1831, 39,000 women were employed in cotton factories in the United States.

Smiths Lead By Wide Margin In Security Records

The Smiths—with some variations—lead the Joneses by six full lengths in the records of the Social Security board, according to a report received by R. G. Mish, manager of the Mansfield district field office.

The data shows that of the 39,000,000 social security account numbers that have been assigned in the nation, 470,190 are Smiths, including such names as Schmidt, Schmitz and Smythe.

The Joneses stand in sixth place with 232,540, falling behind the Johnsons with 348,530; the Browns with 253,750; the Williamses with 249,312, and the Millers with 238,980.

Mish pointed out that this high registration of workers in the largest names groups is proof to discount claims that errors are likely to be made in filing the long numbers, and that the names should be used instead. Without such identifying numbers, Mish says, it would be difficult and in some cases impossible to keep accounts straight.

Approximately 50,000 numbers have been issued by the Mansfield district office of the board which serves Ashland, Crawford, Morrow, Wyandot, Marion, Knox and Richland counties.

CHICKENS ROUT RATTLER

CAMPTONVILLE, Cal.—(U.P.)—That common barnyard chickens are a knockout for rattlesnakes was demonstrated here when Mrs. Lee Bullington discovered a flock of chickens pecking at the rattles of a rattlesnake as it tried to get away. They had already pecked its body until it had no fighting spirit left.

300-EGG FOWL HARD TO FIND

Finds Even Best Breeding Stocks Can't Reach Goal.

ST. PAUL—(U.P.)—Poultry breeders searching in vain for a 300-egg strain of chickens have been told by a university farm extension specialist that even the best breeding flocks are not speedily reaching that goal.

Even if such a strain existed, said Miss Cora Cooke, of the University of Minnesota, it would be so costly the ordinary producer could not buy stock.

"It is well known, too," she said, "that such individuals do not have offspring of such high production to a very marked degree."

Only 38 of 4,786 hens trapnested under supervision of the Minnesota Poultry Improvement board produced 300 eggs.

Eight out of 100 men are color blind, and five out of 100 women.

Book of the Week

"THE FUN OF PHOTOGRAPHY," by Mario and Mabel Scacheri (Harcourt, Brace $3.50).

Time was when this gravely bearded department would have looked wryly upon Mario and Mabel Scacheri's "The Fun of Photography." For time was when it looked as if the advocates of photography were about to drive the printed word quite out of our magazines, and perhaps even out of our books.

But it seems the advertisers and readers were not ready for that change. Even the picture magazines are said to be using more text, so perhaps it is safe to mention so attractive, a book as the one written by the Scacheris.

It is attractive, even though it is printed on paper so shiny you have to choose your light carefully to see the pictures. These last have been taken and reproduced with a lot of good sense and humor, but paradoxically, it is the text that is important. For these Scacheris are out to show the amateur how he can make decent pictures. They want to do away with that perennial nuisance who insists on dragging you dearly through albums filled with "My Aunt Hettie" and "Uncle Joe's Place at East Twitchett."

The whole thing is a matter of selection, if we get it right. The authors do not believe that it is essential for you to have a thousand dollar camera and a couple of servants to carry your equipment around. They made and sold, good pictures with a $28 outfit—and that cost included the enlarger. They believe it is most essential for you to see first the possibilities in whatever you want to "shoot," and second to be able to eliminate the things which are unessential.

They wanted, for example, to photograph State street in Chicago. Their first shot was awful, a pointless and confused mess. They waited for a blizzard, climbed the elevated structure, waited again until a gust of wind blew up a cloud of snow which cut out nonessential detail, and produced a mysterious something worth having. Their book is full of these contrasts — the obvious picture alongside the real picture.

It is full of a lot besides. It tells what to use, how to develop and print, the equipment needed for whatever field you enjoy most, how to crop your pictures and all about photomontage.

HITS NEW SNAG

Cut-Off Paving Involved in 3rd Easement Suit.

Attempts of the state highway department to clear the way for completion of the cut-off on route 42 at Windsor struck another snag today when Willard Hale, a property owner in Mifflin township, appealed from an offer of $84 for a highway easement on a part of his property.

Hale's appeal, the third in four days, was filed in common pleas court and asks that the court determine the amount of compensation due him for the right-of-way easement.

Hale contends that the $84 deposited for him with the county clerk of courts is inadequate to cover the damages to his land by widening of the roadbed for the new highway.

Appeals had previously been filed by Anton Reiser, jr., and James W. McMillen, who own land along the route 42 right-of-way.

HUGHES PLANE LANDS IN N. Y., BREAKS RECORD

Sportsman, Four Companions End Round-World-Flight in Less Than 4 Days.

which swarmed around the plane 20 deep For fully five minutes the fliers stayed inside the ship after the motors were cut off.

Then Thurlow poked a bearded face out, grinned at the crowd, kissed a woman who had shoved her way to the cabin door, and ducked back inside

The Minneapolis airport was the first American soil the fliers had touched, Alaska excepted, since leaving here last Sunday at 6.20 p m. Their elapsed flying time at the moment of landing was 66 hours and 49 minutes

Smile, Wave at Crowd.

Hughes and his companions smiled and waved at the Minneapolis crowd that gathered quickly at the airfield. Hughes took off his hat and waved it at the throng

He ordered re-fueling to start at once, and the job was completed in fast time.

Their landing at Minneapolis was made more than six and a half hours after they had last been heard from by radio, somewhere less than a thousand miles out of Fairbanks when they were flying over the desolate country near Fort Nelson, British Columbia.

In a radio interview while the ship was taking fuel aboard, Ed Lund, co-pilot and flight engineer, said the ship had lost its antenna over the mountains and made radio communication impossible. That accounted for the long silence.

"And we were pretty tired, too," he said.

A barrel and a half of oil was drained from the right motor and replaced with fresh oil, and 750 gallons of gasoline was dumped hurriedly into the tanks. A regularly scheduled transport plane's take-off was delayed to give the Hughes plane the right of the runway.

Few Spectators.

When the Hughes plane touched ground at Minneapolis it taxied slowly up to the administration building. The engines were cut off and the fliers, one by one, clambered stiffly out

Slightly groggy after 12 hours in the air they walked slowly across the field to a group of spectators who had gathered in the bright sunshine.

Thomas A. Thurlow, navigation officer, said that, in spite of their silence for six and a half hours, they had experienced no difficulties on the flight from Fairbanks

The weather, he said, had been excellent, save for a brief period when they saw lightning.

Hughes' white shirt was soiled, his flannel trousers wrinkled and baggy. All looked unkempt. Since last Sunday when they departed on their fast dash, Hughes said, he had slept only about four hours

All of the men reached eagerly for cigarets Richard N Stoddard, radio engineer, explained that no cigarets were taken aboard because of the temptation to smoke.

Inside the plane the few spectators who got close enough saw a brief strip of canvas spread on the floor. The men had slept on it for brief snatches, one explained.

Hughes said he and Ed Lund had alternated at the controls, taking turns of about six hours each. The robot control had done most of the flying he added.

Reach Fairbanks At 7.18 P. M.

Hughes and his plane, advertising New York City's 1939 world fair arrived at Fairbanks at 7 18 p. m, (EST), from Yakutsk, Siberia after a 12 hour. 17 minute flight across desolate but warm northern wastes.

After throwing off all unnecessary weight including winter sleeping bags, heavy clothes, a rubber boat and ping pong balls used as flotation gear for over-water stretches, the Hughes party hopped from Fairbanks at 8 36 p m. (EST) to streak across eastern Alaska and northern Canada.

They took aboard five and a half tons of gasoline—more than 1,700 gallons—and despaired of being able to reach New York in one jump because a comparatively short runway here prevented them from taking on even more gasoline.

Meets Post's Widow.

Hughes met Mrs. Wiley Post, widow of the late Oklahoma airman who established the present round-the-world flight record of seven days, 18 hours, 49 minutes over 15,596 miles.

By coincidence she arrived at Fairbanks the day before Hughes arrival. She is in the north to dedicate a memorial near Barrow where her late husband and Will Rogers, the humorist, were killed in an airplane crash three years ago next month.

Both she and Hughes declined comment on their conversation.

The Hughes party said the most startling experience on the Yakutsk-Fairbanks hop was finding daylight and warm weather all the way

"We had no need for our cold weather equipment," Richard Stoddart, radio operator, said 'Temperatures ranged from 50 to 60 degrees"

From the Bering sea to Fairbanks he said they flew above a fleecy ceiling at an extreme high altitude and did not come down through it until opposite Fairbanks, coming in on the Fairbanks airport station beam

Pilot's Fiancee Collapses In N. Y.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Overcome by the tense excitement Miss Eleanor Hoagland pretty fiancee of Edward Lund, alternate pilot on Howard Hughes around-the-world plane, collapsed today.

Miss Hoagland had been chatting animatedly with friends at hanger No. 7 at Floyd Bennett field, Hughes' terminal goal, when she suddenly fell in a dead faint.

A field car sped her back to her home in New York City, and it was not believed that she would be on hand when the fliers arrived.

Cinderella Bride of Banker

A former cigaret girl in a New York night club, Pauline Spiak, 19 has married Vivian (Kiki) Ostrer, 19-year-old scion of a famous British banking family. The father of the bridegroom is Mark Ostrer, chairman of the board of Gaumont-British pictures. This photo is by Murray Korman, by International News Service

Flight Cost Set At Near $300,000.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Howard Hughes could build a palatial yacht and cruise leisurely around the earth with the money he burned up in his world flight.

The approximate cost of the flight, his headquarters estimates, is $300,000, and the sportsman pilot is paying all of it.

A keen businessman, Hughes won't miss the money. He inherited $17,000 000 at the age of 18, and since has increased his fortune steadily with oil, tool, airplane and movie profits.

Hepburn at Home as Hughes Nears N. Y.

SAYBROOK, Conn.—(INS)—Katherine Hepburn was at the palatial summer home of her parents today as Howard Hughes, millionaire-sportsman-aviator with whom she has been linked romantically, neared the end of his globe-circling record-breaking flight.

The screen star's mother, Mrs. Katherine H Hepburn, when told that Hughes took off at Minneapolis, said:

"That's fine"

Asked if her famous daughter had any comment to make, Mrs. Hepburn said:

"Katherine will make no comment"

Reports first placed the red-haired, freckled-faced actress in New York where it was believed she was to greet Hughes, but neighbors reported seeing the vivacious star on the grounds of her parent's estate.

ARRESTS TRIO

Holmes County Sheriff Solves Series of Thefts.

MILLERSBURG—John Layland, 36, Guy Beeman, 43, and Rosie Schultz, all of near Mt. Vernon, are held in jail here in connection with a number of thefts in Mansfield, Medina, Utica, Mt. Vernon, Danville and Glenmont.

The trio was arrested after a report was received at the sheriff's office here that someone was stripping cars in Glenmont.

They were arrested 15 miles south of here and confessed to a number of thefts, and disclosed where part of their loot was hidden.

Investigating an abandoned school building in Knox county where they said the loot was hidden, Sheriff Weiss found a large quantity of automobile tires and canned goods from a grocery store. Each of the men has served two terms in the Ohio state penitentiary, Sheriff Weiss said.

ROCK CRUSHES MAYOR

DOVER —(INS)— Crushed beneath a fall of rock in Midvale Coal company's No. 4 mine where he was a loader, Clarence O. Virtue, 50, mayor of Midvale village, was dead today. Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow.

KILLED LEAVING BUS

COLUMBUS, O. —(INS)— Highway patrolmen investigated the death today of Edward E. Moore 82, of Pataskala who was killed by a car as he alighted from a bus just east of this city

YOUTH GIVEN TERM IN O. S. R.

Mansfielder, 17, Sentenced For Breaking Into Gas Station.

A 17-year-old Mansfield youth, who admitted attempting to break into a filling station at East Fourth street and Ashland road, was sent to the Mansfield reformatory for an indefinite period yesterday by Judge C. J. Anderson.

The youth, who has been involved in a number of minor offenses in recent years, is subnormal in mentality, Judge Anderson said, and will be held at the reformatory for safe-keeping. Officials of the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster refused to accept him, the judge said.

Police took the boy into custody after he pried open a window of the filling station with a pick.

Park benches are most alluring to those who haven't time to stop.

Happy thought: You can get almost anywhere in town without seeing the B. & O. depot.

It appears that it was not only the ox that was roasted at that Democratic love feast held in Fremont the other night—pity that the attendants at Boys State, recently held in Columbus, couldn't have had opportunity to see this exhibition of politics in the raw.

Revives 'Lunatic Fringe' Appellation.

THE fine line of demarcation between sanity and lunacy was brought to public notice in President Roosevelt's Oklahoma City talk, in which he went to bat for Senator Elmer Thomas, who was re-nominated this week with Gomer Smith as his closest rival.

Sharply critical of those "who seek office, sincerely or otherwise, on impossible pledges and platforms—people who are not practical in an age which must be both practical and progressive", President Roosevelt said: "Theodore Roosevelt was perhaps a bit rough when he referred to such people as 'the lunatic fringe.' Strictly speaking, they are not lunatics but in many cases a little push would shove them over the line."

Congressman Gomer Smith, opposing Thomas for the Democratic senatorial nomination, was for a time a chief figure in the Townsend organization and campaigned largely on his support of a modified Townsend old age pension system.

It is unfortunate that President Roosevelt's reference to the "lunatic fringe" is being quite generally interpreted as a reflection on the mental soundness of the several million sincere men and women who have become associated with the Townsend movement, or some modification thereof.

It has been Rooseveltian New Deal policies and extravagances, more than anything else, that have been responsible for such uneconomic thinking as is involved in the Townsend plan and it ill becomes Mr. Roosevelt to be adversely critical of thinking that seems, at times, to so closely parallel his own.

Farm-City Balance Necessary.

THIS back-to-the-farm movement that many are urging just now is fine in some ways. It tends to get back into the country some people who seem unfitted for city life. It is a good thing for many families with small incomes, especially elderly people or people who need more fresh air and sunshine. It seems to work best, in this stage of our civilization, for people who have small cash incomes or part-time jobs in the city, and who can live healthfully and manage better on a little rural place within driving distance of town.

In short, it is a good thing to spread the cities out more thinly, to extend the suburban areas into an area where city and country blend, and share each other's advantages.

But when it comes to urging any big movement backward from city to country, from industrial and commercial and professional life to regular farming and all that it implies, that is a very different matter.

With big farm surpluses and ruinously low prices already a normal experience in American agriculture, and the government feeling obliged to step in and create artificial scarcities to bolster prices, what will happen if the farming population is greatly increased, along with improved machinery and production methods? It is essential to maintain a real balance, somehow, between agriculture and industry.

Resent Telephone Solicitation.

HOW to utilize the telephone as a convenience instead of letting it become a time-wasting annoyance is a puzzle that a number of Mansfield business and professional men are trying to solve.

Their plight, as they tell it, comes about from the frequency of telephone solicitations by ticket-sellers, program advertising promoters, or money-raising campaigners of one sort or another.

Customary method involves a parrot-like high pressure "sales talk" in which no opportunity is given for interruption, resulting in a waste of several minutes, or more, at what may be a very busy time.

Frequency of these calls has become such that many persons report making it an unalterable practice to answer "No" to any solicitation made by phone, and to hang up the receiver as quickly as the purpose of the call is determined. Those whose time is worth anything can't afford to have it wasted in that way.

Breath-Taking Flight.

THE amazing speed of the latest Atlantic flight is only one of the factors that reveal how much aviation has developed since Lindbergh made his hop from New York to Le Bourget airport, France, eleven years ago. Lindbergh flew alone. Howard Hughes is accompanied by four men, each an expert in his line—radio, mechanics, etc. The 16½ hours of the Hughes flight required an average speed of 218 miles an hour and cut Lindbergh's time in half.

The Hughes plane is equipped with aids to flying which were not available to the pioneer on that Great Circle route. It is twin-engined. It carries three radio sets, representing entirely new efficiencies in aircraft wireless. There is a giro-pilot which will do some of the actual flying; two radio compasses, with different uses and checks on each; instruments better than anything of the sort used before.

The Lion Roars Mildly.

PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN of Great Britain, for a change, told a cheering crowd of British conservatives the other day that his country would fight again if there were no other way of preserving English liberties. He merely regarded it as his duty to use first every decent means of preserving peace, so as to avoid if possible a repetition of the war that killed 21,000,000 people, including 3,500,000 British.

John Bull, it seems, while he isn't really fond of fighting, "can be pushed just so far," and hasn't been pushed that far yet.

Another of the old fancies that has drifted out is that there is such a thing as a foolkiller.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

WE SAT in the yard of a combination town-farm home adjoining a town in the Pennsylvania foothills — and talked of the world.

There is no peace in men's minds in this changing era. There is no peace, for men sense, in this age, that which they have imagined security has been a mirage.

And we all talked of what is to become of us—and of baseball teams, and children and cooking and houses.

Of course, there was Roosevelt too. It is surprising that even in Republican communities, the talk is largely of Roosevelt. I should guess from that talk he already is a third-term possibility. There may be other men, but people do not elect untalked-of men. And the time is short — merely two years.

Yet I believe most of the talk was of houses.

A JAM ON HOUSES

We seem, as a nation, to have got ourselves into an awful jam on houses. We have not yet solved the problem of building them reasonably for the millions who crave for them. That is criminal—for the first duty of a nation is to see that each family obtains a home easily.

A man who has much to do with architects and builders said he believed that there was too much speculation in land and housing, that the evil lay there. "I believe the state would be ahead if it GAVE land to every family—but not to speculators—who desired to build a house. As it is, people are penalized for improvements."

This sounds like Henry George's single tax. An editor recently wrote us that he believed we dwelled too much on this—that we ought to live in the present instead of the past.

But the very day he wrote this a leading citizen of one of our largest cities said that the blighted areas of the city could be brought back only by stopping speculation through the single tax.

At any rate, the people who are discussing it are looking forward. Something must be done to straighten out this housing jam, which I find is no less acute in country towns than in the cities.

The people are becoming quite socialistic concerning that. Then, too, out in the country, there is so much land not being utilized, going to waste, all the while that people are suffering from hunger in cities, that—well, the government is expected "to do something."

"BEST THING"

The people to whom I talked in the country town seem agreed on one thing—the best thing the New Deal has done has been to develop public hydro-electric power. The regions that have not got it desire it—and quickly. Everybody hopes to electrify from top to bottom before he dies. And he hopes to do it with public power—"at reasonable rates."

WAVED ASIDE

I showed a column by another columnist to the group. This column told how President Roosevelt had great ideas for beginning things, but always left them for others to finish. And often they got licked because he went away to fish.

And, the column added, he seemed to have a propensity for appointing men who didn't fit and who thus destroyed the effectiveness of the acts that had passed.

Well, these folks believed he was doing all right, anyway—and they thought it a pretty good thing that he went fishing and mixed with the people and was nice to his grandchildren. He was a good American, and it looked as if business was picking up—and, anyway, if his enemies hadn't been opposing him so much, there wouldn't have been a depression.

CONTRA

But I have a friend who visited a farm in Ohio at the same time, and he came back with a different report.

This Ohio farmer and his family now were prospering, after losing their jobs in the city, and suffering pretty keenly, in 1932.

They feel sorry that Mr. Hoover had such tough luck, believe Mr. Roosevelt is given more credit than he deserves and fear for the future of the country because he is spending so much. They will vote against him, even though they now have two cars in the family—or maybe because they do have.

Well, take your choice. We're going to forget all about foreign wars when the 1940 election campaign begins. But don't ask me how people will vote. I don't even know how my own wife will vote. In fact, I don't even know how I, myself, will vote.

An interesting, epochal period!

States Balanced Budgets, But How!

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt complains that governors who brag of having balanced their respective state budgets, while the federal government has been running farther and farther into the red under his administration, do their boasting with a very poor grace, considering that they have accomplished their balancing by supplying their local needs out of the Washington treasury.

There is plenty of logic in this reasoning.

In the long run a federal deficit goes back to the states anyway; the citizenry of a state, which temporarily avoids spending some of its own money by getting grants from Uncle Sam, has to foot the bill through national taxation.

OBVIOUS?

It is obvious.

If 48 men want to raise, among them, a total of $48, but they have, on an average, only 50 cents apiece, it is clear that they cannot escape a $25 deficit on the basis of individual contributions.

But suppose they say:

"We cannot do it that way, so we'll make a collective levy on the whole 48 of us."

Does that make sense? Of course not.

HOW IT WORKS

Nevertheless, each individual state, whenever there is a country-wide pinch, invariably announces, through its congressional spokesmen:

"This state is 'busted.' It must have contributions from the other 47."

A single state may be stricken by an especial local calamity and have to appeal for aid to its sister states. That is different.

But the system is for all 48 states to proclaim at once:

"Each of us is in desperate distress; therefore each must have contributions from all the rest of us."

FLIM-FLAMMING?

Scarcely necessary to state, there is no commonwealth whose senators and representatives are unintelligent enough not to realize that what 48 states cannot do separately they cannot do collectively—not without running collectively into the red.

But that is not the point.

The point is that each state's own spokesmen hope to flim-flam the other 47 states—to get considerable federal help from the others while contributing proportionately little toward a final wiping out of the gross deficit.

"UNGRATEFUL"

Had localities—states and counties and cities—taken care of their own relief work under the depression, as under past depressions, naturally the federal government would not now be in the red as it is at present.

Most of the states and counties and cities might have been, in the aggregate, just as far in the red, to be sure.

Still, Uncle Sam's bookkeeping would look better.

To have a particular governor announce, "Well, my state is in the black, in comparison with billions of federal debts" (after his state has been helped "ad lib" out of the federal treasury), is enough to exasperate any federal administrator. It is so unjust and ungrateful!

"PUBLIC TO BLAME"

The governors are not alone to blame, for that matter.

Congress, punched up by home pressure and under pressure, too, of the Washington administration, provides credits for local expenditures, and each governor has no option but yell for all he can get out of all that is available. His state will not get its fair share of the fund, it has to contribute to, otherwise.

Briefly, it all is punk economics. The whole public is to blame fundamentally.

Health Advice

Dread of "Second Summer" Vanishes.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE old dread that mothers had of the baby's second summer is fast disappearing. There is no reason for it any more.

Tradition had it that the second summer is very critical and that the baby must be sick some time in that period. But the situation has changed, and, as a matter of statistics, the summer months show less sickness for those under five years of age than any other part of the year.

None of us need as much food in the summer, and this includes the baby. "Less to eat and more to drink in the summer time," is the slogan of a wise old practitioner of my acquaintance.

The summer is a fine time to let the skin get acquainted with the air. Take all the baby's clothes off and let it roll around in the good air and sunshine on these warm days.

Fruit juices are important foods and should be added liberally to the diet of any baby during the first and second summer. And fruit is all right, but oranges and tomato juice have the best supply of Vitamin C. A half cup to a cup of tomato juice or the juice of a large orange every day is the proper ration.

Sweet oranges to which no sugar has been added should be used. Before the orange is cut it should be dipped into boiling water and wiped with a clean cloth so that no germs get into the juice when it is squeezed.

The best preventative of overheating is cool water. Two or even three baths — without soap, of course—are not too much in hot weather. The stimulating effect of the cool bath is enhanced if it is thrown with some force on the body. So water from a hose or sprinkled on from a watering can is most refreshing.

In its second summer the baby begins to show some will power and selection about its food. It is more liable to eat irregularly. From this it becomes sick. Someone says: "Yes, naturally, it is sick; this is its second summer." It is the wrong food, or food eaten at irregular intervals and not the second summer that is at fault.

In fact, with all the improvements of modern life, the young mother should welcome rather than dread the second summer.

Timely Editorial

Our President.

The office of president of the United States is one of great dignity and importance. It has been held by men who discharged its duties with such consistent distinction that the nation still honors them. Monuments have been built to perpetuate their memories; and in several instances their homes have been made national shrines.

So it is with deep regret that we see a president of this great republic stooping from his high office to take part in the petty details of politics; it seems as uncongruous as it would be should a minister of the gospel prostitute his pulpit to the furtherance of his personal ambitions. Either would be a distinct blot on an escutcheon that should be preserved in all its pristine integrity.

To confer the highest office in the land on one of our citizens is like an accolade that should be so deeply appreciated it would inspire greatness and nobility, not pettiness that would furnish no worthy reason for perpetuating a memory.—Newark Advocate.

Listen, World!

Obey That Impulse!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU wanted to say a kind thing this morning—

BUT YOU DIDN'T DARE.

It seemed too impulsive.

You didn't know the other persons very well.

Maybe they'd think you were funny.

Or even impertinent.

And secretly laugh or scoff at you.

It would be terrible if they did that!

The fear of it stung like a blow.

And so you didn't say that kind thing you wanted to say.

So often it happens like that. There was that other impulse yesterday. Then you wanted to reveal your heart. You wanted to tell someone about the old worry that has been nagging you, about the sorrow you've never quite learned to bear.

One can't always talk about things like that but now and then there comes a moment.

You had such a moment, didn't you. A casual acquaintance's casual smile, understanding glance, seemed to open a locked door in your heart. For a moment you had an overwhelming desire to tell all about it—ask for help.

Then, like a black thing swooping down, came the old fear.

Would that stranger understand, or would he think you queer?

Or maybe he'd take advantage of your confession—use it against you, somehow—

And wouldn't you be ashamed and humiliated the next day when you realized what you had done?

Doubt; fear; suspicion. Instantly the frank impulse was gone. The door in your heart shut, barring out that seemingly friendly soul, shutting you in with your old loneliness and pain.

How often it happens like that.

DON'T LET IT!

Obey that impulse!

DARE TO GIVE YOURSELF!

Dare to give the love and laughter that bubble naturally within you.

Every soul you meet is hungry for just such friendliness. Aren't you hungry yourself? Doesn't it quicken you, hearten you, to feel sudden, surprising kindness? Aren't you grateful for it?

Of course you are. And the other fellow will be grateful too—more grateful than you can know.

That kindly unexpected word may be a hand stretched down to help him out of hell!

And dare to share your pain! It is not a queer thing to do. It is the greatest compliment you can give another human—that sharing of grief.

There is a sort of sacred communion about it.

Do you remember when, as a child you took your First Communion, took, with wonder, that bit of bread, that sup of wine? Why? You did not understand.

But, there, in that solemn silence, you felt something you have never felt before. Others were taking the wine and bread, too. You were taking it all together. You could feel the wonder and the silence. You could feel the rare tenderness and togetherness. Never had you felt so near other people before.

Grief is a Communion, too—the bitter, black bread of human agony; the harsh, salt wine of human tears. Those who share that Communion are never after entirely apart.

Dare to share your pain. Do not be proud about your tragedy. Every soul on earth has some pain hidden deep within the heart. Humble your pride and open your heart. Share your grief, or another's, as you would share bread and wine. In giving comfort, you will find healing. You will never be so lonely again.

Dare to give yourself, and you will find yourself—there, in that stranger's heart.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Potters Field."

Almost every political subdivision has its Potter's Field, a burial place for those without funds or friends—and a charitable institution which was started in biblical days.

In Matthew is the story of the first "Potter's Field"—a bit of ground which the priests of Jerusalem bought as a place of interment for indigent foreigners.

The purchase price was thirty pieces of silver and the money paid was the identical lot of coins which Judas received for betraying Jesus, and which in his repentance, Judas turned over to the priests who, pondering what to do with them,— "———took counsel and bought with them the potter's field to bury strangers in".

It became known as "Potter's Field" because the original plot adjoined that of the potter's house, the potter being of course he who made earthenware vessels.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Sometimes in this town you sit down with people and never know that you are gazing upon a prelude to tragedy. You see them casually, you dismiss them from your mind, and perhaps you never think of them again—unless, as happened to me, you notice a little paragraph in the paper next day.

This by no means is an unusual happening in New York. It has happened before and will happen again, and so I relay it now, not as news, but as something that unfortunately happens to be a part of life in this and any other large metropolitan center, I suppose.

THERE is a pleasant little bar on a side street on the east side of town. It is a small bar but it is cozy and people like to go there for a quiet bit of refreshment before wandering off to bed.

One night last week I wandered in there with Jimmy Wallington, the radio announcer, who was in New York for a bit of a vacation. It was his last night in the city. As we sat down we noticed a woman at the bar. I imagine she was 30. She was the only girl in the place.

We sat and talked for awhile and then a man came in by himself. The woman looked up. She looked away quickly and got up and walked down to the end of the bar and whispered something to the bartender. The man, meanwhile, ordered a drink. He shot a furtive glance at the woman. He followed this with a brief, though sweeping, glance, as if he were "taking in" the place. He wanted to see who was there. He may have been looking for doors and exits.

Meanwhile the bar captain was mumbling something into a telephone. Then, casually enough, he sauntered down to where the stranger stood. Perhaps he mixed him a drink; I don't recall.

But I remember this: in about two minutes two detectives walked into the bar. They walked over to the woman, spoke to her, and all three walked out together.

LATER we learned that she was afraid of this man, the stranger, for at one time he used to be her husband. The cops wanted to take her to the station house, so that nothing would happen to her, but she said she was all right now. She would be safe, she felt. So they left her alone and she went home by herself.

And that's about all anyone knows of the story. The inside facts of the story, I mean.

But the next day, when I saw Jimmy Wallington again, he said: "Remember last night? Remember that girl at the bar? And the cops?"

"I saw a paragraph in the paper about a man and a woman being injured in a fight. Were they the ones?"

"That's right," replied Wallington, "but that paragraph didn't go far enough. They are dead. Both of them were killed with an icepick."

And that's the way it happens. You walk into a place, you see people who mean nothing at all to you or to anyone you know, and you walk out again, little realizing that their anonymity is being fashioned into headlines for tomorrow.

LOVE IN DANGER

CHAPTER IV

Ray pushed up her wave while exchanging gay remarks with the crowd of primping girls surrounding her—she pinned a stray golden lock into the short curls hugging the nape of her slender neck, which was beginning to lose some of the sun-tan she had patiently acquired the past summer at Newport. Yes, she thought, she was looking her best tonight. It had been nice of Frank Armstrong to mention it.

She finally went out to the hall where he waited. He stood with his back toward her. There was no one about and she paused to observe him. What a fine specimen of man he was! Suddenly, he put a hand into his breast pocket and hastily took out—a string of pearls! He held them up to the light a brief instant, then stuffed them back into his pocket. He reached in another pocket and got his cigarette case.

Ray stood frozen with amazement. Breathlessly, frantically, she assured herself that it could not be true. But no other necklace in Mumford had pearls that size—there were no necklaces in Mumford except Aunt Lucy's.

Trying to bury the hurt in her heart, and her outward agitation, she walked slowly up to him.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting," she said, apropos of nothing at all.

He wheeled to her quickly. His eyes looked candidly into hers. There was no guilt registered on his rugged face, nothing but tenderness mixed with adoration.

"How lovely you are," came in his rich baritone.

"Any one is lovely who can be made use of—is that your code?" she asked unflinchingly.

An expression of complete bewilderment crossed his pale face. Then he brightened, laughed shortly. "I know what you're driving at," he said. "You think I'm complimenting you to appease your vanity—you think I'm doing it for business reasons."

"Well," she flung back. "Aren't you?"

He scowled, placed two firm hands on her slim shoulders, bare but for narrow silver straps. His touch was electric, exerted a strange force. It was as if she had already given herself to him, as if she actually belonged to him. For a brief instant, she thought he was about to shake her, but he made no move to do so.

He said swiftly, "You're wrong about me—very wrong. I never had met the girl I could love until I met you. I—I do love you—never forget that. I—I love you."

She stood motionless, taut, noting the slight bulge of his breast pocket. Pearls? Steadfastly, she met his burning gaze. Strains from the orchestra in the ballroom above now floated down to envelop them in an aura of tugging sweetness. It would have been problematical which of them surrendered first to the violent emotion tugging at their senses, if they had not now been encompassed by sudden light laughter and the chatter of girls mingling with the heavier voices of the men pouring into the hall from the dressing rooms.

Frank Armstrong's arms dropped to his sides. "Shall we go upstairs?" came from him hoarsely.

"Yes," she replied, shortly, and they followed the others to the lift."

While they were ascending to the top floor, Ray introduced him to her friends crowded around them. Every one was curiously polite. Instead of being annoyed, Frank Armstrong acted as if he were secretly enjoying himself.

They collided with Hal Williams upon reaching the upper hall. He greeted Ray with, "Here you are at last! I called you, and Jarvis said you'd gone out with—a gentleman."

His lifted brows signified something that provoked her. She shot a swift glance at Frank Armstrong, but he appeared not to notice. She linked an arm through his now, said with stinging emphasis, "Perhaps you're too inquisitive, Hal. This happens to be the gentleman I'm with. Mr. Armstrong—Mr. Williams."

The two men bowed distantly and Frank Armstrong led her into the ballroom.

Ray spent the next few minutes presenting Frank Armstrong to many people. Stella Clifton, the hostess, immediately tried to flirt with him but, for the time being, it did not register too forcibly with Ray. She was wondering about those pearls in his pocket. How could a man, evidently a thief, act so freely innocent? Or wasn't he a thief? And ought she to tell Mr. Roper about him? Could she—feeling as she did about him—do anything to harm him? She decided that she could not, at least for the present.

Later in the evening, Ray was talking to her Aunt Lucy when Frank Armstrong, with whom she had been dancing, slipped through a nearby door leading to a balcony. Ray could see the lighted end of his cigarette as he paced up and down. Roger Paine, young vice-president of the Mumford City bank, came up just then and asked her to dance.

Ray smiled up into the homely countenance of this dependable man for whom was predicted a brilliant business future. They started to dance across the floor. Ray was now in a rebellious mood. Frank Armstrong had deliberately walked away from her. It was positively rude!

Then, suddenly, she gave a little cry as the room was abruptly plunged into total darkness.

All was confusion. Girls screamed, the orchestra stopped on a discord. There was crowding, pushing, rude milling about — the hundred or more guests trying to locate the exits, trying to escape from what might be calamity. The veneer of politeness was entirely shed. No subway riot could be rougher.

Soon servants appeared bearing lighted tapers in candelabra, in candlesticks, vases and other receptacles hastily collected to meet the emergency. Morton, the butler, announced that all the electric lights in the house were out but there was no cause for alarm. The orchestra began playing a sprightly fox-trot to cover the disorder and fright.

Ray glanced frantically about for Roger Paine. He was not in sight. Frank Armstrong finally approached her with a peculiarly satisfied expression upon his face.

"Nice party you brought me to," he commented dryly. "A candle-lighted ballroom! And—I've been robbed."

Her eyes wavered to his breast pocket. The bulge was no longer evident.

"You—you can hardly call it being robbed—when what was taken was not rightfully yours."

ASHLAND BOARD PLANNING ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Authorizes Engineer to Find Cost of Resurfacing 30 Miles of Highways.

ASHLAND — County commissioners have given authority to L. G. Shenberger, county engineer, to make a survey and to estimate the costs of resurfacing with tar materials, about 30 miles of roads in this county.

Shenberger stated that if possible, the work will be done with the aid of a PWA grant. He will go to Columbus July 19 to confer with L. A. Boulay, state director of public works, concerning the grant.

N. Y. DRIVER INJURED

ASHLAND — Possible internal injuries were sustained by Dan Steinfeld, 39, of New York City, when the automobile he was driving toward Ashland on route 42 about four and one-half miles north of Ashland Wednesday morning, collided with a truck.

H. H. Bate, driver of the truck which was forced off the road by the impact, sustained only a cut hand. Steinfeld's car was demolished.

date for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, nor John W. Bricker, who is unopposed for the Republican nomination, will speak in the city before the Aug. 9 primary.

Asserting that he didn't "see any need to bring Gov. Davey here for a talk," E. B. Kallmerten, county Democratic chairman and Davey leader, said there had been no move to stage a Davey rally in Mansfield before the primary.

"The governor's position in Richland county seems pretty secure to me," Kallmerten added.

No effort will be made to bring Bricker to the county for a talk before the primary, Glenn L. Bierly, the county G. O. P. chairman, said today.

Bricker is scheduled to speak at a rally Monday night at Newark, and that probably will be the nearest he will come to Richland county, Bierly added.

ENEMIES JOIN TO FIGHT FIRE

Red and Blue in War Game Maneuvers Battle Grass Blaze.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — No one was surprised that this city was saved from invasion today in Ohio National Guard war games, but the rival armies had to join forces and start another brand of fighting when hostilities were over.

The problem of laying down a gas attack became a problem of a grass attack when dry grass, covering the rolling hills of Beachwood and Peper Pike villages east of Cleveland, took fire.

The menacing "red" army, beaten as planned because it was numerically inferior, joined the rival "blue" forces to battle grass fires for an hour before they were extinguished.

county jail since Mrs. Wilson was killed July 4, was released today. There had been no charges against him. He was the driver of a truck which crashed into a tree near Crestline, fatally injuring Mrs. Wilson who was riding with him.

In the other case, jurors held as unavoidable an accident at Ontario in which Mr. Greifenstein walked in front of a car operated by Clyde Bowersock, 21, of near Ashland.

Others indicted and the charges against them are:

Homer Reid, Lexington, issuing a check without funds; Marks Sankey, Mansfield, pointing firearms; Thomas Cantrell, Mansfield, breaking into the Mansfield Elks' club, and Jevons Zelinski, burglatizing Mansfield Senior high school.

Zelinski is serving a term in the Wisconsin state penitentiary for manslaughter, but Prosecutor Marriott said the indictment against him here would serve as a detainer until he completes his sentence. After that, he may be returned here to plead to the indictment.

Charges against Essie Price Brown, colored, Mansfield, accused of cutting with intent to wound, and Mrs. Bernice Whitt, Mansfield, held on a larceny count, were dismissed by the jury.

The prisoners will be arraigned at 9 a. m. Friday before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court.

CITY COOLS OFF

Showers Today, Mercury Drop Tomorrow in Forecast.

With the mercury below 80 degrees, the week-old heat wave was at an end today as light showers fell in the Richland county area.

Clearing and cooler weather was predicted for tonight, while Friday will be fair with moderate temperature. The temperature at noon today was 79.

While only .10 of an inch of rain was falling in Mansfield last night, southern Ohio and Northern Kentucky points were hit by a severe storm which brought from 2.66 inches to 6.28 inches of rain, unroofed buildings and felled wires and trees.

Maysville, Ky., on the Ohio river near Portsmouth, had the heaviest rainfall. An L. and N. railroad locomotive and three cars of a passenger train were derailed at Hayes, Ky., when heavy rain washed out the tracks.

year-old conflict in China will continue until 1940. Japan lacks money and materials for the necessary sports structures.

Count Michimasa Soyeshima, a member of the international Olympic committee, said Japan might bid for the 1948 games.

"I hope Japan can bid then," he said. "Apparently it is impossible to bid even for the 1944 games. The cancellation was inevitable under the present circumstances.

UP TO COMMITTEE

CHICAGO—(INS)—"It is now up to the international Olympics committee to award the 1940 games to some other city," Avery Brundage, president of the United States Olympic board, said today when informed that Japan had decided not to fulfill her role as host to the games.

He added:

"The games were awarded to Tokyo, rather than to Japan. Therefore we will have to await word from the city of Tokyo. The scene of the games merely will be shifted, possibly to Helsingfors or London."

FINLAND MIGHT GET BID

LONDON—(AP)—Lord Aberdare, member of the executive international Olympics committee, predicted today that Finland would be offered the 1940 Olympics, should the Japanese government's reported withdrawal of its invitation be presented in formal statement.

Meanwhile in Helsingfors, Urho Kekkonen, home minister and also president of Finland's Amateur Athletic union, declared today that Finland was prepared to arrange for the 1940 Olympic games if they were offered to her.

Get Wise to Constipation!

When you're constipated, it's a great temptation to be satisfied with quick relief. But physics may become a habit. And they don't keep constipation from returning. It's so much better to get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat what most people do, chances are the only thing the matter is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat a little Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B1. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

"IT'S FIGHT, FIGHT."

MY NEIGHBOR was hard at work and did not see me come.

"Good morning," I said.

He jumped, then answered cheerily, "A good morning to you!"

It was early, yet I saw that already he had hoed two long rows of beans. The leaf hoppers had eaten many holes in the tender leaves, but the yellow Mexican beetle had not started to ravage the clean, thrifty rows.

"It's lots harder to raise crops now-a-days than when I was a boy," my neighbor remarked. "It seems each different plant has some ornery pest ready to destroy it. Look at my potatoes. Some of them are withering at the roots, and you may not believe it, but I saw scads of those hard shelled bugs in the spring, waiting right on top the rows for the 'taters to come up. I b'lieve they're wiser than they used t' be. Then there's the blight on the pear tree, and the scale in the orchard . . . I tell you it's fight, fight all the time, and every year gettin' worse. I can't see what the future is comin' to."

"Perhaps folks don't live right," I suggested, smiling.

"Naw, it can't be that, for when I was a young man I was a harum-scarum. Found out it didn't pay . . . and yet there's more pests in my fields now than I ever knew. How do you account for all the damage?"

"Well," said I, with a twinkle in my eye, "the Good Book says to lay up treasures in heaven where moth and rust do not corrupt . . ."

"Huh!" he snorted. "If this keeps up, nobody'll live long enough to get to heaven!" We shared a chuckle at that.

"Seriously," I said, "I think it happens this way. When this country exchanges plants, roots seeds, and live stock with other countries, we are bound to get some of the pests that have ravaged foreign countries for centuries. The peach borer, the coddling moth, the potato bug, the Mexican beetle . . . some of our worst weeds were brought in, in this way. Perhaps the farmer's fight to live makes a stronger, better man of him . . ."
